Silence Of Sea Veils "Old Glory" Fate

Search For Missing Fokker, Two Airmen and Editor Is Futile

No Further Word Heard Today Which Might Indicate What Tragedy Caused Bertaud, Hill and Payne, on Apparently Ill-fated Flight to Rome, to Send Out S. O. S. Call.

TWO TRANS-ATLANTIC STEAMERS ABANDON HUNT FOR HEARST PLANE

Many Still Believe That Passage of Few Hours May Bring News That Adventure of Americans Has Not Ended so Tragically as Present Reports Foreshadow.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—The mysterious silence of the sea today shrouded the fate of the Fokker monoplane Old Glory, which is feared to have crashed into the Atlantic ocean 500 miles east of Newfoundland.

DEVELOPMENTS TODAY IN VARIOUS LONG DISTANCE AIRPLANE FLIGHTS

- 1—No trace of Old Glory, missing 500 miles off Newfoundland.
- 2—Sir John Carling believed speeding toward England.
- 3—Brook and Schlee leave Rangoon for Bangkok, Siam.
- 4—Courtney still delayed in Spain.
- 5—Levine delays hop-off because of bad weather.
- 6—McIntosh held in Ireland by unfavorable winds.
- 7—Royal Windsor plans to leave today for England.

No further word had been heard early today which might indicate what tragedy caused Lloyd Bertaud, James D. Hill and Philip A. Payne, pilot, navigator and passenger in Old Glory on its apparently ill-fated attempted flight to Rome, to startle the world early yesterday morning with a frantic S. O. S. call sent crackling through the ether from the plane's radio.

Two of the trans-Atlantic liners which rushed to the assistance of Old Glory when the distress signal was heard abandoned the search for the plane after a hunt of many hours. The vessels were the Transylvania and the Germanian, which were the first to reach the spot where the plane broadcast its message of distress before it is believed to have fallen into the sea.

Marcus Loew.
Who Will Be the Man?
Happy Wall Street.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
[The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.]

MARCUS LOEW'S death is a loss to the world's happiness. His friends must find comfort in remembering that he gave pleasure to millions. Replacing thousands of liquor saloons with hundreds of cheerful theaters, he provided relaxation, pleasant, instructive amusement.

He was a good American, as simple, sincere, unpretentious in prosperity as he had been in years of hard poverty. His able associates will carry on his work and investors in his institution will be protected.

MARCUS LOEW himself, always cheerful, a real friend, more worried about the welfare of others than about his own, cannot be replaced. What Samuel Johnson said of the death of Garrick may truly be said of Marcus Loew.

"His death eclipsed the gaiety of nations, and impoverished the public stock of harmless pleasure."

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES is back from Europe, with "nothing to say to reporters," a dangerous sign with a national convention near.

Mr. Hughes never said, "I am too old to be president." That would be preposterous, from one of the most hard working men in public life. He did say, "I am too old to RUN for President."

SECRETARY MELLON is back from Europe, also "with nothing to say to reporters."

Secretary Mellon was walking up Park avenue in New York City, looking about half his age and going at a rate that would have taken him from his desk in the treasury building to the front door of the White House in considerably less than a minute and a half.

NOW is the time to pick your candidate, with President Coolidge "not choosing," which means that he does

Alcohol Feud Blamed for Explosions in Chicago.

STILLS BLOW-UP Patients and Nurses in Nearby Hospital Pan-stricken.

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Three persons were killed, two were probably fatally injured, and damage estimated at $200,000 was caused early today by two mystery explosions on the south side of Chicago.

Federal and city investigators, who began an immediate inquiry, expressed the opinion that an alcohol feud may be responsible for the blasts.

Both explosions occurred within a radius of six blocks and within a period of 45 minutes. It is believed the terrific detonations resulted from exploding stills.

Merina Marganti, 40, was burned to death in the wreckage of his home. Another man, killed in this same explosion, has not been identified.

President Coolidge's Envoy to Philippines to Speak Here.

NOON LUNCHEON Plans for Cleveland Man's Visit are Announced.

Colonel Carmi A. Thompson, Cleveland, who recently returned from the Philippine Islands, where he was sent as the personal envoy of President Coolidge to make a survey of the political and economic situation, will address members of the Kiwanis club at their noon luncheon in the Larkins Annex, Market street, next Thursday.

Colonel Thompson, who was the Republican nominee for governor in 1922, was to have been the guest of the club several weeks ago, but was unexpectedly called to Washington.

In his report to the president Colonel Thompson urged that the supervision of the Philippines be taken out of the hands of the Army and Navy departments and placed in control of a bureau of insular possessions. A bill to bring about this change has now been prepared and will be introduced by Senator Willis at the coming session of congress.

Lawyer and Business Man. Colonel Thompson is a lawyer and a business man, having extensive mining and shipping interests. He has had the distinction of having served three presidents of the United States. During the Taft administration he was secretary to the president, assistant secretary of the interior and treasurer of the United States. He was a close personal friend of the late President Harding, who appointed him a member of the advisory committee to the American delegation to the disarmament conference at Washington in 1921. He was a former member of the Ohio legislature, speaker of the house and secretary of the state of Ohio for two terms. He was referred to as the president's "eyes and ears" in the Philippines.

About 40 members of the club attended today's luncheon. Short talks were made by Attorney Walter B. Hill, Russell C. Heddlow, John E. Newell, Rev. B. R. Johnson and Claude Nease.

LEGIONNAIRES OFF TO FRANCE

War-time Memories Revived as Vets Sail.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—"The Yanks are go" (this time) goin' over there." War-time memories were revived today as thousands of World War veterans congregated in New York and set sail for France. The waterfront was thronged with them and the piers resounded to the music of bands and the hallelujahing that betokened reunions.

It was a somewhat different get-away today from that of ten years ago. There was nothing mysterious or silent about it; no silent tramping through the streets with overseas packs; no stealing aboard darkened transoms in the gray dawn of the morning.

In the Jones family's second-floor flat on Tris Street the green window-shades were pulled down to the sills to shut out the heat that had been hanging over the town for a week, heavy and depressing as fog.

That was Sally Jerome for you! Clever at courageous and up-and-coming, at without an ounce of silly self-pity at her.

It was 6 o'clock on the third Monday morning in August, and hot as only an Aust day knows how to be hot.

An electric fan had whirled and hummed all night long in Mrs. Jerome's bedroom—the largest and airiest room in the flat. But in spite of it she had had a bad night, one of the worst ones she had ever slept through.

Three or four times she had to get her daughter Sally up to ask her for a glass of ice-water from the kitchen, and for one of the new headache powders—the only kind she had ever found that did not upset her stomach. Mrs. Jerome enjoyed poor health to the utmost.

She was asleep now and had been asleep for hours, although later she would declare she hadn't slept a wink. Her soft plump hands were still hold-

Solons Act Tonight On Fire Levy Vote

Special Meeting is Called to Reconsider Chamber of Commerce Request for Submission of Proposal to Electors on Nov. 8.

Meeting in special session at 7:30 o'clock tonight in municipal court headquarters, city council will reconsider the Chamber of Commerce request for submission of a proposed one-mill fire department tax levy at the November election.

By a vote of 4 to 3, solons, last week, refused to give the people an opportunity to pass judgment upon the plan to increase the personnel of the fire-fighting force from 13 to 28 in order to avert soaring fire insurance rates. In the absence of Councilman Otto Kimmel, President of Council N. P. Kerr, cast the vote which killed the resolution.

Kimmel, who is said to favor the submission of the proposed levy, will attend tonight's meeting. The chamber of commerce committee which recently made a thorough investigation of the local fire department, will urge the passage of the resolution.

To submit a tax proposition to the electors the proposal must be filed not less than 40 days prior to the election.

The levy, if approved will provide funds for the employment of 15 additional firemen.

Investigators charge that fire insurance rates in East Liverpool have been increased as a result of the undermanned department.

MAN HURT WHEN COUPE UPSETS

George Dawson, Sixth street, Chester, was cut while his brother, Herman, escaped injury when the Ford coupe driven by the former overturned on Second street, near Carolina avenue, Chester, at 8:30 o'clock last night. The accident occurred when the brakes failed to hold. The car was badly damaged.

With Old Glory and its three occupants given up as lost, intense anxiety was aroused this afternoon over the probable fate of the Canadian plane Sir John Carling, which hopped off at Harbor Grace, N. F., at 8 o'clock yesterday morning (Newfoundland time) for Croydon airdrome, near London.

Up to 12:30 o'clock (E. S. T.) this afternoon the Sir John Carling had not been sighted off the British coast, and at that hour the plane was five and one-half hours overdue, as she had been expected off the British Isles at noon, English time.

It was estimated by Croydon airdrome officials, according to cablegrams from London, that the Sir John Carling carried enough fuel to last until 2:30 p. m. (E. S. T.).

The Sir John Carling carried no radio and no ships reported sighting the plane.

London Awaits Fliers. LONDON, Sept. 8.—The Sir John Carling Canadian monoplane bound from Windsor, Ontario, for England, was enthusiastically awaited here today.

No report has been received from ships in the plane's course, but the machine is believed to be winging speedily toward its goal, which the fliers, Captain Terry Tully and Lieut. James C. Metcalf, hoped to reach before noon today.

Lighthouses and coastguard stations on the English coast were keeping a sharp lookout for the plane. The British coast is believed to be a great reception for the plane. The journey is successfully completed.

Weather conditions over the Irish coast are most unfavorable. A heavy rain fell all night long and showed no signs of abating today. The sky is overcast and misty and visibility is low. The winds are moderate and westerly.

SHOW ANXIETY AT CROYDON

British Airdrome Awaits Word From Ocean Fliers.

CROYDON AIRDROME, England, Sept. 8.—With the Old Glory disaster fresh in mind, anxiety began to rise this afternoon, as the hours slipped by and no word was received regarding the Canadian trans-Atlantic plane Sir John Carling.

At 3 o'clock the airdrome officials estimated that the plane was three hours overdue. It should have been sighted off the coast at noon, according to the schedule it was expected to maintain. The airplane carried no wireless.

Officials pointed out that no serious fears should yet be entertained as bad weather might have cut down the plane's speed.

A small crowd had gathered here by noon to welcome the plane.

Sally had spent the night in the hammock couch on the front porch. It had been anything but a comfortable night for her. First of all she had got up at midnight to give her bed to Mabel. Then the hammock couch was three inches too short for her straight young body and there had been some mosquitoes to bother her, besides. In short, it had been a night of horrors.

THREE ENTER RACE FOR WELLSVILLE SCHOOL BOARD

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid, a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

Plan Operations On Cannons Mill Road

Will Grade Route to Wellsville; New Salineville-Kensington Highway Turned Over to County; Road Reports Filed.

The county steam shovel that has been working on the southern or East Liverpool section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road has been removed to St. Clair township and work will be started immediately on the grading of the Wellsville-Cannons Mill road, according to a detailed report of road activities submitted by County Surveyor Lloyd C. Kirk to the county commissioners.

St. Clair township trustees will finance the Wellsville-Cannons Mill road. The improvement will begin in the vicinity of Stop 55 on the Lincoln highway. It will not be given any surface treatment this year.

The new five-mile Salineville-Kensington road has been turned over to the county by the Holmes Construction company of Wooster. Terms have been completed on this road and the guard posts erected and threaded with cable.

The Salem-Hanover road, a stretch of 7.8 miles, also has been completed, according to the report.

Good progress is being made upon the grading and construction of drainage structures on sections G3 and E4 of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road by Williamson, Howard & Smith of Youngstown. Work is being done on 5.93 miles of this highway in the vicinity of Williamsport. The grading on this road is 90 per cent completed, and 95 per cent of the drainage structures have been finished. It is considered likely that the grading of these two sections will be finished within the next two weeks.

On four sections of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road, these being B-1, G-2, G-2 and H which are being surfaced with concrete by Lewis & Copeland, of Lima, favorable progress is being made. In all, 5.46 miles are now being improved with a concrete top, and 40 per cent of the concrete had been poured at the time the report was compiled.

With favorable weather prevailing, it was declared by Mr. Kirk today that the last concrete on this road at the sub-station should be poured within the next two weeks. While the last concrete poured is being cured, work will begin on the berms and the erection of guard rails. Unless there is an unexpected slip in the program, this road should be opened to traffic on or about Oct. 21.

Slow progress is being made on the northern section of the East Liverpool-Youngstown road from Middle-ton north to the Cox highway, a distance of 2.86 miles. This is known as section D-1 and while the drainage structures are 100 per cent complete, the grading is only 95 per cent complete.

J. D. Paxson of Salem has completed about 90 per cent of the grading on Section A of the Columbiana-Cannons Mill road in Fairfield township, which is to be improved a distance of 1.153 miles with bituminous macadam. Nothing has been done on the surface part of the contract. The report declares that the progress on this road is slow.

Only fair progress is reported on the Lewis & Copeland contract on the Columbiana-New Waterford road, which is being surfaced with concrete for a distance of 2.65 miles. The surfacing of the road is completed, but the berms have not been worked up.

In the Elkton-Clarkson road contractor Ben Francis of East Palestine has 5.78 miles to grade and place drainage structures as indicated by the road maps. While about 30 per cent of the drainage structures are finished less than 20 per cent of the grading has been put over. Two additional steam shovels are being moved into this job, and when these are at work, there will be five shovels grading at as many different points.

About 85 per cent of the grading has been finished on the East Liverpool-East Palestine road in St. Clair township, a contract that was recently awarded to Allison-Harris Co., of East Liverpool. The culverts and drainage structures are about 75 per cent complete. Slow progress has been reported on this contract, but it is understood there is to be another shovel put on this contract, beginning work at the north end of the road. The first shovel was moved on the south end of the contract last Saturday.

The Madden Lumber & Construction company of East Palestine, awarded the contract for the replacement of the old covered wood bridge at Beaver Valley on the New Waterford-East Palestine road are making good progress. The old bridge is being replaced with a new concrete arch structure, which at this time is about 85 per cent complete.

Progress is reported only in on the construction of the new cantilever bridge being built over the Middle Fork of Beaver creek on the East Liverpool-Youngstown road. The contract was awarded to Lewis & Copeland, and is now but from five to seven percent complete.

A different report has been filed concerning the construction of the new concrete bridge over the West Fork of Beaver creek on the same road, and which is being built by Lewis & Copeland. This bridge is now 95 percent complete.

Mellott & Wadner are also making rather fair progress on the grading and resurfacing of the mile Lincoln highway just west of Kensington. Unless wet weather holds up the contract, the new road should be opened to traffic within the next month. It is expected concrete will be poured within the next two weeks.

Will Teach at Iron: Miss Dorothy Lee Martin, of Beaverville, O., was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde McElroy of Commerce street. Miss Martin has accepted a position as instructor in the Irondale schools.

CHESTER ROAD BAN ON SCHOOL WILL BE ASHED IS UNCHANGED

Coat of Cinders to be Placed on New Highway.

Ashing of new road between Chester and the state line will begin probably next Monday, state highway engineers, who visited Chester yesterday, announced.

A Wheeling contractor who will apply the new coat, is now moving equipment to Chester. About 15 working days will be required to complete the job.

The road, which will connect with the new concrete at the state line near the H. F. Hobbs farm, will be covered with a one-foot layer of cinders rolled to a depth of eight inches. A state truck and three men will remain in Chester this winter to keep the highway in first class condition until next spring when the highway will be surfaced with concrete. The ashed road will be 21 feet wide.

Contractors, in charge of the grading on the West Virginia end of the road, are expected to complete their contract within a few days. The grading was started last fall.

The Pennsylvania section between Laughlin's Corners and Clinton, will be completed within a week, road officials at Harrisburg assert. This strip probably will be opened October 1, completing the so-called "air line" between East Liverpool and Pittsburgh. This route is approximately nine and one half miles shorter than the road which follows the river via Midland, Beaver, Rochester, Monaca, Woodlawn, Corapolis and McKees Rocks.

McCLURG FAMILY HOLDS REUNION

Annual reunion of the McClurg family, which includes many south Beaver county residents, was held at the Burgettstown fair grounds on Labor Day.

Addresses were made by Rev. Mr. Sutton, Mr. and Mrs. Elson Stewart, John Fleming, Mrs. J. S. McClurg and J. A. McClurg. Miss Marie Munsey, Pittsburgh, pleased with humorous readings.

A. McClurg was elected president of the association, Mrs. Martha MacNamee, secretary, and F. E. McClurg, treasurer. D. L. McClurg, J. S. McClurg, Mrs. Philip MacNamee and Mrs. Munsey were named members of the committee to arrange for next year's meeting, which will be held at Burgettstown.

Brooke County Order Has no Effect Here.

Modification of the infantile paralysis quarantine in Brooke county today will have no effect in Hancock county, County Health Director F. E. McClure, New Cumberland, announced.

"The quarantine in Hancock county will not be lifted until Sunday, September 18, and schools cannot open until after that date," said Dr. McClure. "Sunday schools, picture shows and other public gatherings will be closed to children under 15 years of age until after that date."

But one case of the disease is reported in Brooke county. The quarantine, which was put into effect last week, was not to have expired until September 15, but following a conference between health and school officials it was decided to change the regulations so as to permit the schools to open next Monday. Should additional cases develop in the meantime the school opening will be deferred.

Schools in Hancock county were to have opened this week but a quarantine order made a two-week postponement necessary.

Dr. McClure said today that the two Hancock county victims, one at New Cumberland and the other at Weirton, are recovering.

When Buick improves upon Buick —the standard for the year is set

Buick for 1928 introduces a higher standard of beauty and luxury than the world has ever known. Buick interiors are as modish as exquisite drawing-rooms—as harmoniously colored—and as comfortable. Buick's new Fisher bodies are low-swung without any loss of head-room or road-clearance.

And so, down to the smallest detail of construction, wherever refinements could be made, Buick made them. Again Buick has improved upon Buick. Again the standard for the year is set.

Deadline For Ballot Places

Entry lists for the November 8 election in Columbiana county, when municipal and township officers and board of education members will be selected, will close Friday midnight, deputy state supervisors warned today.

Petitions of candidates for places on non-partisan and independent tickets must be in the hands of the election chieftains on or before that hour, or bear a postmark indicating they were in the mails before the time limit expired. The deadline does not affect Republican and Democratic nominees, for they were named at the August 9 primaries.

Already three men have entered the race for the three school board places in the East Liverpool district, while it is likely that others shall qualify today or tomorrow. One independent has filed for the mayoralty here, while another has announced his intention to qualify. Two independent petitions for council places, too, are in the election board's hands.

Petitions for township places must contain at least 25 signatures, while the law requires one per cent of the vote for city ticket and two per cent for board of education ticket places. In East Liverpool, at least 50 signatures are necessitated to win a place on the municipal ballot, while board of education candidates' papers must contain at least 100.

Business Outlook

What of business conditions as summer ends and autumn begins? According to one of the country's leading business commentators:

"Taken all in all, our domestic situation seems to be fairly satisfactory, and as conditions in Europe appear to be improving, there is nothing in sight to cause any serious misgivings unless the renewal of turbulence in China should bring about a crisis in the Far East."

Domestic business is the big thing. Foreign business is the tail end, and the tail seldom wags the dog. Europe, too, is by far the biggest part of that tail. Much as observers may view China with alarm, and important as the fate of that great nation may be politically and otherwise, the fact is that economically it is a very small factor in the American situation. The trade of any of our populous states is more important.

Not much to worry about then, except the soft coal strike, which shows no signs of settlement, and which may yet spread farther and retard industry by causing a fuel scarcity. The sooner the powers that be in business, politics and industry get busy on that job, the better it will be for everybody.

No More School Dunces

Nowadays when a child does poor work in school he isn't put in a corner on the dunce's stool. He is sent to a competent physician for a physical examination. If teeth or eyes or adenoids need attention, they are given it, and usually the child goes back to school and progresses normally.

If the physical examination fails to reveal the cause of his backwardness, the psychologist may be called upon. He looks into the child's mental life and often finds that some home maladjustment or some trivial mistaken notion has set the child off to a bad start on the road to learning. These things are taken care of, the parents are talked to about handling the child, and in most cases he is fitted into his proper place in school and all goes well thereafter.

Miss Sybil Cox, specialist in "adjustment education," says there are still other reasons for a child being backward in school. They have crept in with the over-crowded class room and the teacher who is trained well in her subjects but may not be an expert educator.

"I know of one boy of ten," says Miss Cox, "who was failing in his classes, and because of his failure, developing a hatred of school, his classmates and his teacher."

Investigation by the adjustment education expert revealed that he had simply not been taught to read properly in the lower grades. This meant that he couldn't get most out of his lessons as he studied his textbooks. Thorough private instruction sent him back to school reading as well as other children of his age. Able to get his lessons along with the others, he promptly became happy and successful.

Some people think all this is "stuff" and foolishness. It isn't. Much of it is still experimental. But it is reaching in the right direction, seeking the right way to make education effective and joyful, as it ought to be.

Raging Chariots

The quiet old city of Jerusalem has its first taxicab. This is only the latest of the modern innovations and conveniences which have entered that city since Lord Allenby delivered it from the Turks.

The Toronto Globe is reminded by this event of a verse in the Old Testament:

"The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broad ways; they shall seem like torches, they shall run like lightnings."

One lone taxicab in Jerusalem probably can't quite live up to all that, but a whole flock of taxis in New York, Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland or any other good-sized American city certainly couldn't be described better.

Great sensation in Nemarket, Ont. Man and woman thrown out of a buggy when their horse is frightened by an automobile.

High Spots In The Life Of Little Stanley—

By Fontaine Fox

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—There are few spots so near New York's heart beat so restful as that little church a few short steps from Fifth avenue on 28th street known far and wide as "The Little Church Around the Corner." Its real name is the Church of the Transfiguration.

There is something exceedingly touching in its simplicity—the modest edifice and the churchyard nearly always bright with flowers. It is the shrine at which many theatrical players worship, for it was the church from which a beloved actor was buried when other churches looked askance at the profession.

Weddings are so frequent there that nearly always the sidewalk out front is strewn with rice and old shoes. It has stained glass memorial windows erected to James Montague and Edwin Booth, Joseph Jefferson and Richard Mansfield. Another famous church for theatrical folk. "The Actors' Church" on West 48th street. Many actors came from extremely religious homes. Al Jolson is the son of a Jewish cantor. Bobbie Clarke, the comedian, was once a choir boy in Ohio. Also there are many devoted religionists on the stage. Fred Stone is a notable example. Also William Hodge.

A song and dance team in vaudeville gives ten per cent of their salaries to the church. And a few men facing death faced it so bravely as Charles Frohman, who, standing on the deck of the sinking Lusitania, said: "Why fear death? It is the most beautiful adventure in life."

It has been estimated more than 50 per cent of the people of the stage are regular church goers. These are not recruited entirely from the so-called legitimate stage and vaudeville, but include many who belong to burlesque.

Few sermons stressed so powerfully the doctrine of religious tolerance as Augustus Thomas' "As a Man Thinks." And it is only one of innumerable successful plays with a religious theme. The truth is there is as much godliness—indeed it not more—on the stage as in any other profession.

So heavy is the demand at the "Little Church" for marriage ceremonies that appointments must be made far in advance. In June this year 250 couples plighted their troth there. No charge is made for actual ceremonies, but all "gifts" are turned over to the church fund. These gifts range from $1 to $200.

Incidentally a critics rises to yelp that a recent statement that few chorus men progress beyond a chorus has an illustrious exception in Martin Brown, who has written five fairly successful plays.

It is said the wealthiest man catering to the amusement public is John Ringling, whose fortune is estimated at more than $50,000,000. Mr. Ringling has been in every village, town or city in America boasting more than 1,000 population. Most of his time these days is spent in Sarasota, Fla., although he comes to New York frequently to prowl around art galleries. His collection of paintings and art objects is one of the finest in the world.

Women who begin in girlhood to become professional swimmers often acquire what is known as "fish mouth," a receding of the chin due to the manner of holding their mouths for breathing purposes while in the water. Plastic surgeons have operated on two recently to adjust the malformation.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Virginia's Paul Revere.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 8.—Every American school boy and girl knows of the midnight ride of Paul Revere in the spring of 1775 that sounded the alarm to the Massachusetts countryside of the approach of the British redcoats, but how many of them or of their elders know of the all-night ride of Jack Jouett six years later that saved Thomas Jefferson, three signers of the Declaration of Independence, and members of the Virginia Legislature from capture by the British troops under Colonel Tarleton?

Paul Revere's ride averted no disaster; it merely enabled the colonists to prepare to resist the redcoats. However, it has been emblazoned in the records of history and honored in the nation's poetry.

Jack Jouett's ride was longer and more dangerous than that of Revere. What it accomplished is best indicated by reflection as to what the consequences might have been if Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry, Richard Henry Lee, Benjamin Harrison, Thomas Nelson, Jr., and the members of the Virginia Legislature had been captured by the British in 1781 and taken to England to stand trial for high treason.

Nevertheless, few histories mention Jack Jouett's exploit and if any poems have been written about him or if the general public knows nothing of them. Apparently the doughty Virginian died "unwept, unhonored, and unsung" save in his old-home town. There—in Charlottesville, Va.—a tablet on a modern building bears the inscription:

"Site of the Old Swan Tavern where lived and died Jack Jouett, whose heroic ride saved Mr. Jefferson, the Governor, and the Virginia Assembly."

really hurt. It got so the New Yorker who went to a night club felt a good deal as he would feel sitting in a Broadway rubber-neck wagon.

Recently I seem to have unintentionally handed Flushing, L. I., a bank-hand compliment. In contrasting it to New York I said it had the sleepy manner of the old South. To me that is a rare charm in a city of 75,000 souls. But some Flushing folk have protested. So a few bow and an apology. I really think it is a delightful city.

sembly from capture by Tarleton, June, 1781. Erected by the Monticello Branch of the Association for the Preservation of Virginia Antiquities. And most Virginians know that Patrick Henry who said "Give me liberty, or give me death" was saved from imprisonment and possible death by Jack Jouett.

Another Kind of Monument.

Jouett has another kind of monument, too, in the form of the horse-shoe marks in the hardwood floor of the entrance hall of Monticello, left by the charger of the British officer who was so anxious to take Thomas Jefferson prisoner. The author of the Declaration of Independence was out and away from his mountain-top mansion, thanks to Jack Jouett, a bare ten minutes before the redcoat violated the doors of Monticello.

Jack Jouett, his father, and three brothers were all captains in the Revolutionary Army—a record that it is said no other family made. The father was a friend and neighbor of Jefferson. The mother was of the Harris family and her given name was one to make moderns stop, listen, and laugh—Mourning—a name that suggests that our colonial ancestors were as gloomy at christenings as at funerals.

The Jouetts were of Huguenot descent. They held much land in and around Charlottesville, where Thomas Jefferson held at one time more than 80,000 acres. The father of Jack Jouett built the Swan Tavern, which was for several generations the most popular hostelry in that section of the Old Dominion. George Washington honored it with his patronage, as he is modernly reported to have honored a host of other inns. It was an old-fashioned frame structure of two stories, with porches and galleries and dormer windows. Before the front door was a sign on which was painted a swan.

At the time of Jouett's ride the affairs of the colonists were in rather a desperate state, especially in Virginia, where Lord Cornwallis was in command of the British forces that were having things pretty much their own way. With Cornwallis, by the way, was Benedict Arnold, the traitor.

The seat of government of the state was then at Williamsburg on the peninsula less than 15 miles from Yorktown, and under the menace of the enemy the members of the legislature and other officials hastily transferred the capital to Richmond. Cornwallis pressed hard after them and they barely paused there before moving on to Charlottesville, Governor Jefferson going to his estate at Monticello, three miles out of that little city.

Cornwallis' Plans Thwarted.

The British commander thought he would be striking a body blow to the

There is just one right way to keep the skin clear and smooth

Skilled physicians recognize the appearance of pimples, boils and other skin eruptions as being an indication of an abnormal condition of the system. This is why so many thousands have been enabled to free themselves of these unsightly blemishes and painful annoyances by taking a course of S.S.S.

You owe it to yourself to try S.S.S. It helps Nature build up red corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the blood is nourished.

"I suffered from impure blood—was weak, and had lost so much weight, I didn't look natural. I had pimples and was also bothered with a breaking-out that itched terribly. I also had boils one after another. I tried different kinds of remedies, but nothing did me any good until a friend advised me to take S.S.S., which I did. This was some time ago. Now I feel well, and I am getting along fine. S.S.S. stopped the itching and it cured me of boils. I advise all weak and run-down people to give S.S.S. a trial. It clears up the skin and makes you strong and fills you with energy." Mrs. J. W. Barker, 1337 Walnut street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

S.S.S. is made from the fresh roots of medicinal herbs and plants and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory. It is time-tried and reliable.

S. S. S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

forces warring for independence if he could capture Jefferson and the members of the legislature, among whom, as has been said, were three signers of the Declaration. According to the dispatch Colonel Tarleton and 250 of his best troops to undertake that coup.

Capt. Jack Jouett was in Louisa county when he got wind of the expedition. He captured a British dragoon and appropriated his uniform, and so disguised was at Cuckoo Tavern some 50 miles from Charlottesville when Tarleton and his men stopped there for a meal. He soon learned where the expedition was heading, and for what purpose, and lost no time in setting out to warn his compatriots of their danger.

Jouett was mounted on "the best bred and fleetest nag in seven counties," it is recorded, and with his knowledge of by-paths and short cuts through the forests he was able to make better time than the British. He arrived at Monticello at dawn, after an all night ride, and warned Jefferson, and then pushed on into Charlottesville to apprise the legislature of their danger. The latter immediately set out to cross the mountains to Staunton where their safety was assured.

Jefferson sent his family and servants in one direction from Monticello and he himself took another. He left last and the British were so near that he had to avail himself of an underground passage from his mountain-top mansion in order to make his escape. It is a tradition, also, that Jefferson had the shoes on his horse reversed so that his pursuers would be confused if they attempted to follow him by his horse's tracks. In his "Miscellaneous Papers" Jefferson tells of Jack Jouett's ride, as follows: "Learning that the legislature was in session at Charlottesville they detached Colonel Tarleton with his legion of horse to surprise them. As he was passing through Louisa on the evening of the third of June he was observed by Mr. Jouett, who, suspecting the object, set out immediately for Charlottesville, and knowing the by-ways of the neighborhood, passed the enemy's encampment, rode all night, and before sunrise on the fourth called at Monticello with notice of what he had seen and passed on to Charlottesville to notify the members of the legislature."

Gentlemen:—

A word of appreciation for your Lucky Strike cigarettes.

On May 29th last, I was operated upon for gastric ulcer and appendicitis. The day after I wanted a smoke real badly and asked my doctor. He advised strongly against it stating that even a slight cough would "rip me open" and cause additional pain, and if you've had the experience you know that to be so. However, I had a package of "Luckies" in my coat pocket and persuaded my nurse to get them. She did and I smoked eight that day. To make it short I smoked all the two weeks at the hospital with nary a cough or throat irritation or the least discomfort, and by the way, smoking was prohibited at the hospital but nurse kept my door closed and window open so I enjoyed my smokes to the full extent.

I am just a school teacher in a small town and not setting a good example to my pupils because I smoke, I suppose, but there is certainly "pep" in Lucky Strikes.

Sincerely yours,

J. A. McPherson

"I'M MOTORING BACK TO CHARMINE"

"GOD BLESS YOU, MOTHER'S BOY"

CAPTAIN FLAGG GETS HIS ORDERS

THIRTEENTH EPISODE THE marriage incident, over, Captain and Sergeant are soldiers again. This thing they call war makes men think differently from ordinary mortals. A little grudge is forgotten when they go out to face death. They grab their stuff and join the troops. Both bid goodbye to Charmaine.

"I'll be back, Charmaine," promises the Captain. "I'll be back first," boasts Quirt.

Mother's Boy rushes along with his pack and rifle, his face sadly misplaced under his tin hat. He lingers a moment with Charmaine. "You've been awfully kind," he says. "Will you watch for letters for me from home?" And Charmaine promises. "God bless you, Mother's Boy."

The men fall into line. Cognac Pete rushes up, still anxious that something be done about the marriage.

"Go jump in the creek," orders Flagg. The Mayor, disconcerted by the sudden ending of the ceremony, wants to have another day set, but is discouraged by Flagg's treatment of Pete. The outfit moves off along the mucky roads. They reach the post command. Flagg gets his orders for action, and as night falls the company moves up. Flares burst on the darkness. Shells shriek to right and left and overhead. Hour after hour the men go forward in a rain or blood and steel. One after another falls—here an old marine—there a headless boy. A little town is the objective. "Only a hundred yards, men," shouts Flagg. "Don't stop unless you meet a bullet. Fix bayonets. Follow me!"

leans. Both will fly Waco planes. Brooks' mount will have a Wright whirlwind motor. That of Sinclair will have a Curtiss OXX-6 motor.

Howard Rinehart, who flew for Huerta during the hot days in Mexico, is another entrant, and B. L. Whelan will probably fly a ship representing the Dayton Chamber of Commerce.

Ohioan's Marriage By Proxy Hits Skids

Spanish Girl, Who Has Trouble Getting Into Country, Quarrels With Martin's Ferry Man Before They Leave Steps of Church in New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Marriage by proxy sounds romantic but it isn't practical, in the opinion of black-haired Florentina Sariego, party of the first part in such a wedding.

This young Spanish girl married Maximo Muniz, of Martin's Ferry, Ohio, by proxy two years ago. Muniz's father representing him. She had a great deal of trouble getting into this country but she finally did—early this week, after intervention on the part of Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg himself.

Muniz came from Ohio to meet her, and, on Tuesday, they were married again in the mission of Our Lady of Guadalupe. But they hadn't left the steps of the church before they were quarrelling violently.

"He didn't love me," she sighs. Maximo said she wouldn't accompany him to Martins Ferry because he didn't have a love nest all furnished for her.

The bride said that wasn't so. "He said he didn't love me," she sighed. Also she asserted that Maximo told her she'd have to borrow money to pay her own fare to Ohio; that they'd have to live in a furnished room; that he didn't have any money; that she'd have to get a job and that he told her to borrow money to get along for awhile.

Tears Ring From Finger. "I said I couldn't borrow any more—that I had already borrowed passage money," she said, "and he tore the wedding ring from my finger."

That was the last straw. Maximo went to the steamship office of the line that brought his bride over, and said:

"I'm through—you can take her back to Spain."

Then he returned to Martins Ferry alone. "She went to live with her brother in Jersey City, saying: 'I'm perfectly willing to go back to Spain. But I want a divorce first.'"

PROSECUTOR SAILS FOR JURY MEET

Prosecuting Attorney Robert M. Brookes of this city, who has been visiting in Europe for more than two months, sailed from England for the United States yesterday. He expects to arrive in New York Tuesday and will take up his duties at Lisbon probably on Wednesday.

During Brookes' absence work in the prosecuting attorney's office has been in charge of his assistant, John E. Bauknecht. Bauknecht today urged mayors and justices of the peace having cases to come before the grand jury at the September term of court which meets at Lisbon on September 19 to file their transcripts immediately.

THREE KILLED, 46 INJURED IN TROLLEY CRASH

Fifteen are Believed Fatally Hurt at Evansville, Ind.

CAR IS JAMMED Interurban Runs Into Open Switch, Hits Brick Cargo.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Sept. 8.—A check today on the disaster that befell patrons of Dade Park race track, near here, late yesterday, revealed that 15 of the injured were in a serious condition. Three persons were killed outright.

The tragedy occurred when a crowded interurban car, returning to Evansville after the races, ran into an open switch and crashed head-on into three box cars loaded with brick.

Those killed instantly were: Chester Brown, motorman of the interurban car. William Tilley, a farmer. Max Meyers, of Evansville. The car with every seat taken and the aisles jammed to capacity was speeding at 45 miles an hour, when it hit the open siding. Only four of the passengers escaped unhurt, and of the injured, only three were able to go to their homes after first aid had been administered.

All others were rushed to hospitals for treatment.

Coroner Max Lowe today began his probe of the tragedy.

Don't Squeeze Blackheads—Dissolve Them

Squeezing out blackheads makes large, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calomel powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one, big or little will disappear at once.

Destroy Insects Carrying Infantile Paralysis

Read this paragraph taken from United States Public Health Reprint No. 350. "Both the sporadic and epidemic prevalence (of infantile paralysis) quite constantly reaches its maximum during the late summer and autumn months. This seasonal prevalence is one of the most constant characteristics of the disease.

"In this respect it closely resembles the intestinal infections and the insect borne diseases." Kill the flies and mosquitoes. Destroy every insect carrier of disease. Spray Fly-Tox. Spray every room. Particularly children's sleeping rooms. Use Fly-Tox. Check the menace of epidemic. Fly-Tox kills every flying or crawling insect. Fly-Tox is the product that was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by the Research Fellowship. Fly-Tox is safe, sure, easy to use.

Tully Plane Lost

Note Tells of Old Glory Disaster. Although Tully and Metcalf were kept in ignorance of the fact that Old Glory had broadcast a frantic S. O. S. before they started on their daring flight across the Atlantic, they learned the news as soon as they opened the leather case containing the maps which were to be used on the trans-Atlantic voyage. Friends of the fliers, feeling they should be apprised of Old Glory's fate, yet fearing the news might shake the confidence with which they started on the hazardous venture, slipped a brief pencilled note inside the map case a few moments before the Sir John Carling's take-off, choosing this method of letting the fliers know that still another trans-Atlantic flight had apparently ended in disaster.

Ever notice—The average man doesn't know what to say when a proud mother holds out a baby for exhibition. The situation calls for some kind of a remark. We know one man who has a stock phrase he always uses and he says it works every time. He just says, "Well, that IS a baby!"

Sally's Shoulders

night to dim the fresh loveliness of twenty, and Sally was justly twenty. Her skin was as smooth as a healthy baby's and her eyes were bright and dewy when she opened them to the glare of the morning.

High above the rooftops across the street the red August sun stood in a sky of brass. Sally blinked at it. "Hello, Sun! and at it again, aren't you?" she asked silently. "And here's where I rise, myself!"

She folded her sheets, set the cushions upright on the swinging couch, and went indoors.

The darkened living-room was a sea of tossed Sunday newspapers. There were cigarette ashes scattered on the rug and Beau's straw hat lay on the seat of the arm-chair beside the window. Across the back of it hung his limp collar and necktie.

On the dining-room table were the remnants of the midnight meal that he and his Mabel had eaten there six hours before—crusts of rye bread on a plate, a bowlful of cream cheese with green onions chopped up in it, and two half-emptied glasses of ginger-ale. Mabel's little lipstick-stained handkerchief and her meshbag lay beside them. Under the table were the navy-blue sandals that she had kicked off and left lying there.

Sally picked them up and tiptoed down the long narrow hall to the bathroom.

Making as little noise as possible, she bathed, cleaned her teeth and brushed her hair.

It was lovely blue-black hair, clipped close to show the shape of her pretty head, and it shone like satin.

Sally's eyes were deeply blue with thick upcurling lashes that cast shadows against her lids. Unusual eyes that changed with her moods, and became gray and tender and grave by turn.

She had the flawless white skin that is a real gift of the gods to blue-eyed brunettes, and a red-lipped smile that people never forget once they had seen it.

But her greatest beauty was one that she did not know she had. Her shoulders.

In a world of round shoulders, freckled shoulders, too-fat shoulders, too bony shoulders, and shoulders that do not match, Sally's were a marvel. They were straight where shoulders should be straight, and they were beautifully curved where shoulders should be beautifully curved.

Many a beautiful chorus-girl in Mr. Ziegfeld's famous "Follies" would have given her eye-teeth and a week's salary for shoulders like Sally Jerome's. The fifty of it was that nobody ever saw them. But nobody ever did.

For Sally never had owned a low-necked dress in her life. When she went out in the evening with Ted standing before the open window of the bathroom. They kept her fit as a fiddle, so she said.

"One—two—three—four," she began to count aloud, as she bent from the waist down, time after time, to touch the floor with her fingertips.

Then she began to hum, swinging back and forth in perfect rhythm: "Five—six—seven—eight." And, then without realizing it, she began to sing Nick Lucas' little song, keeping time to her movements:

"High—high—high
Up on the hill,
Watching the clouds
Go—by—"

What a nice happy song that was, she kept thinking, as she sang. She shut her eyes and thought of a green hill-top with the wind rustling the tall grass, and the clouds sailing by like silver ships. . . . Wouldn't it be gorgeous to get out of town on a sweltering day like this and find some green hill-top far away in the country? To be there with someone you loved to be with. With someone you loved. . . . Not Ted Sloan. . . . No, not Ted Sloan. Decidedly not.

"High—high—high
Up—on the hill—" Sally was singing at the top of her voice now as she did her daily dozen with all her might and main.

"Well, for Pete's sake! What are you trying to do—Wake the dead?" At the sound of the peevish voice behind her Sally jumped and swung around sharply. Her happy little song stopped.

Millie, her younger sister, had opened the bathroom door without a sound. She stood now on the threshold in her pink nightgown and bare feet, and her little face was dark with ill-nature.

"Not seven o'clock yet, and you shrieking all over the house like an alarm clock!" she whined crossly. "You woke me up, and I'm dead for sleep—" She sagged against the wall and yawned, opening her little pink mouth like a kitten.

You would have marvelled, if you had seen them together, that the same family could produce a Sally and a Millie.

For Sally was all pep and life and "go" while Millie was a clinging vine, a drone in the hive. Her blue eyes were slow-moving, her voice was a Miss Evans was presented with the guest prize. The following were present: Messdames L. G. Evans, N. W. Ballantyne, Robert Ferguson, R. B. Jester, Mary Davis, J. C. The out-of-town guests were Mrs. Charles Nelson of Steubenville and Mrs. Edgar Miller of Farmington, W. Va.

Mrs. Eliza Porter and daughter, Mary, and Miss Rose Wilson spent Labor Day as guests of the former's daughter, Mrs. Park McMullen, and family of Wellsburg.

Mrs. R. M. Brown and son, Scott, are spending the week in Atlantic City.

"Just nine years ago today that your father walked out and left me with you three children to raise!" Mrs. Jerome remarked when she had finished a piece of toast. "You were only eleven then, Sally, and the twins a year older. . . . My soul, but it's no wonder I can't sleep nights when I think of all the trouble I've had!"

She picked up her book—it was Edna Ferber's "Show Boat"—and went slowly and heavily back to her bed. Books were practically the only excitement in Mrs. Jerome's life. She lived on books. Just lived on them.

Perhaps she loved the romance and glamour in them more than most readers because there was so little glamour and romance in her own life. They had gone out of it 11 years before when her good-looking husband had walked out of the front door for the last time.

"I'm not coming back, so don't look for me," he had told her. "I'm going where I can get a decent meal once in a while and a bed that's fit to sleep in."

Evidently he had found what he wanted for there had never been any word from him except an occasional money-order. But it was too bad he hadn't stayed at home for a year or two longer; for by that time Sally was 13 she could keep house far better than her mother ever had. She was a born housekeeper, was Sally.

The meal that she put upon the table at a quarter of eight was delicious, even if the food was simple and plain. It was well-served, too. The glasses, cups and plates shone, and there was a bowl of yellow daisies in the middle of the table.

"How tricky everything looks!" Mabel Wilnot cried when she came popping into the room. "May I have my coffee this minute, Sally? I've got to shake a leg or I'll be late for work!"

Mabel worked at Bursall's, in the same office with Millie.

"Millie tells me she is going to quit her job at the end of this week," she went on, pouring cream into her cup. "I tell her she's crazy to do it, but you know Millie—She just won't stay in a place unless she's having a good time there."

"Good time?" echoed Sally. "I don't know what you mean, Mabel."

Mabel laughed. Her laugh was an odd little sound, sharp as a paring knife.

"Well, she won't stay in an office unless there's somebody there that to take. She was like an old-fashioned sister to them. She was the real head of the family, as well as its willing slave.

And so, without thinking, she obediently bent over the bath-tub and turned on both of the faucets. Then she spread a faded bath mat on the floor and took two clean fluffy towels from the linen-closet under the window.

"There you are, Hon!" she said briskly and went out, closing the door gently so as not to wake the sleepers on the other side of the hall.

By half past seven she had breakfast all ready to put on the table, and was pouring the strained chilled orange juice into five little glasses when her mother came into the kitchen.

Mrs. Jerome had once been a beauty. There were traces of beauty still in her plump face, her blue eyes, and thick fair hair that was just beginning to gray.

"Good morning, Mother. Did you have a wretched night?" asked Sally, all concern and sympathy.

"Wretched. I didn't sleep a wink until it was broad daylight," Mrs. Jerome declared with a moan. She sank down besides the table, and her chair creaked under her weight. "Mrs. Jer-

Pour me a cup of coffee, Sally," she said. "Just a drop, and then I'll go back to bed and have forty winks. I'm as limp as a rag."

She looked it, too, sitting there in her faded gray kimono and Sally's heart went out to her. Her blue eyes were full of tenderness as she watched her mother drain a second cup of coffee.

"Just nine years ago today that your father walked out and left me with you three children to raise!" Mrs. Jerome remarked when she had finished a piece of toast. "You were only eleven then, Sally, and the twins a year older. . . . My soul, but it's no wonder I can't sleep nights when I think of all the trouble I've had!"

Mabel laughed. Her laugh was an odd little sound, sharp as a paring knife.

"Well, she won't stay in an office unless there's somebody there that she's got a crush on," she explained bluntly. "And I don't blame her in a way. I know just how she feels. After all, she's got to meet somebody worthwhile or how's she ever going to get married. I ask you. No girl wants to work around an office forever and ever, amen."

With that Beau's future wife jumped up from her chair.

"Well, trolley car! I must scoot!" she called in shrill farewell. "You'd better go and drag Beau out of bed or he'll never get his job of work today, either. . . . By-by and ta-ta!"

The door slammed behind her. It took Sally three long hours to put the flat into order that morning. It always was at its worst on Monday after the litter and confusion of Sunday. Newspapers everywhere, dust everywhere, clothes scattered about.

But Sally had her own way of working. She played the phonograph in the living-room all the time she was busy, and every now and then she would stop for a second to try some kind of a new dance step—one of the fifty ones that she and Ted Sloan had worked out together.

"There's something nice about every-one."

"But there's everything nice about you—" said Sally, during her mother's room when Mrs. Jerome went into the bathroom at eleven o'clock to dress herself for the day.

The tune went to her heels, and she stopped for a second to do a Black-bottom shimmy step at the foot of her mother's old black walnut bed.

Music always went straight to Sally's feet, and whenever she heard it, they would begin to tap the floor. She would dance anywhere and everywhere, and the world became her dance floor. Or at any rate that part of the world that was her world—the little world of the flat, the restaurant that she and Ted Sloan knew, and Mr. Peevey's office where she worked afterwards for $21 a week.

Mr. Peevey did a small mail-order business, and six days a week Sally appeared at his office at noon to do his typewriting for him.

He had a delicate stomach, and practically lived on little whole-wheat biscuits and raw milk. Every day Sally brought him a pint of milk, heated it on a small electric stove in the office, and served it to him along with three of the little biscuits.

He made it a rule to have the little meal at 12:15 sharp, and one of the chief worries of Sally's life was to get to the office on time every day.

This morning it was perilously close to noon when she opened the door of the flat and ran down the stairs that led to the street.

A door at the bottom of them opened, and a stock young man with gray eyes and rumpled red hair stepped out into her path.

Ted Sloan sold a certain make of cheap automobiles for a living and he kept no regular working hours.

"I'm just on my way downtown, Babe," he said to her with a wide friendly grin that showed square white teeth. "I'll take you in the buggy."

He took her arm to help her into the little car that stood waiting at the curb, but she shook his hand off. "I can get in by myself, thanks," she said. She didn't mind his touch when she danced with him, but at all other times it irritated her and made her nervous.

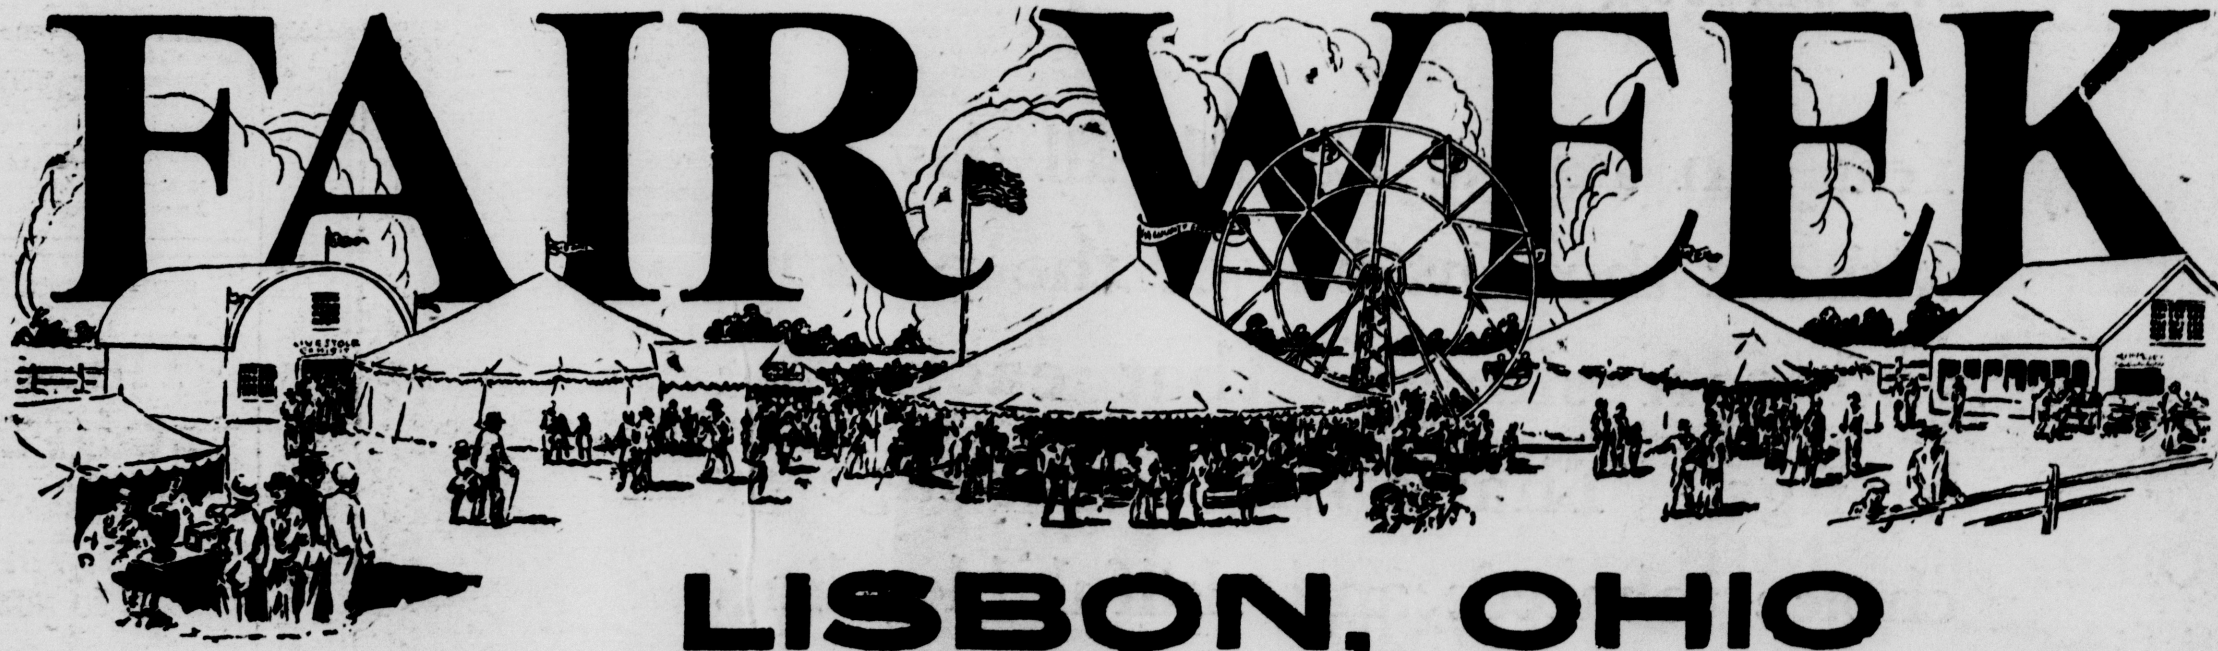

Just why this was so was a deep mystery to young Mr. Sloan, Sally, herself, never thought about it. She was too busy keeping the family fed and mended—keeping Mr. Peevey fed and soothed—to worry much about her own personal problems.

With scarcely a word, she and Ted Sloan drove all the way downtown to the Nye-Naylor building where Mr. Peevey had his small dark office that smelled like a musty pantry.

"Thanks for the buggy-ride, Teddy," Sally said as she got out of the car and started across the sun-baked sidewalk. "See you tonight, I suppose."

And then she forgot all about him. For something happened that swept everything else from her mind.

O'Brosky Pitches One-Hit Game And Katies Tie With Cords

TIREMEN AND K. T. K. CLASH AGAIN FRIDAY

Cords Must Win to Clinch Second Half Pennant; Riley and Dickey to Hold Conference Today.

ALTHOUGH disposition of the championship of the City League second half season is still more or less uncertain to day as a result of the Superior Cords-K. T. K. 2 to 2 deadlock last night at Columbian park, Manager Frank Riley, of the Tiremen, and Business Manager Joe Dickey, of Laughlin, the first half winners, will hold a conference this afternoon in Chester, probably to discuss series possibilities.

Davis Cup Foes Battle Today

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 8.—The great and absorbing problem as to whether France will take over the Davis cup this year, or postpone the inevitable, will be settled in part this afternoon at the Germantown cricket club when the singles matches get under way. In the first match, William Johnston, America, will meet Rene Lacoste of France, the present American champion. The second match will couple the names of William P. Tilden, greatest of all modern players and Henri Cochet, of France, the man who has taken a fall out of Tilden twice in succession and has made him like it, if any man can go so far.

While in London recently King Fuad of Egypt greatly enjoyed a comic opera.

Tunney Rests; Set for Fight Now, He Says

TUNNEY CAMP, Lake Villa, Ill., Sept. 8.—Gene Tunney rested again today, giving the wound over his right eye a chance to heal. The cut, which Chick Wiggins opened in the third round of his sparring exhibition with the champ Tuesday, is coming along nicely.

Wiggins, meanwhile, has left camp to meet Tiny Herman at Evansville, Indiana, tonight and Tunney is without his star sparring partner. This was one of the reasons he decided to call off work for two days. Wiggins returns tomorrow.

There is a possibility yet that the championship series, in the event Chester wins, will get started Saturday, although nothing definite along this line can be determined until Friday night.

Just what will transpire in the event that Laughlin, in a last minute rush, should come through to win this half as well as the first, is a question.

Jockies Hurt In Rail Mix-up

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Noble Walters and George Hughes, jockeys, were in a critical condition today from injuries sustained during a jam of horses, fighting for the rail position, in the sixth race at Washington park late yesterday.

Walters suffered concussion of the brain and may die, it was said. Four other jockeys were unhorsed in the jam but received only minor injuries. Pommard, favored to win, broke a leg. Five thousand spectators who witnessed the tragic pile-up, saw the valuable thoroughbred shot to death as a means of ending its suffering.

Fifteen Sixty, Jockey Hughes' mount, was knocked down in the collision of horses and dragged from the track dead.

Gibson Bets $3,000 Champion Will Kayo Jack by 5th Round

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—On the theory that "money talks," Billy Gibson, manager of Gene Tunney, today displayed a receipt for $3,000 that he had wagered at odds of 7 to 10, on the proposition that the champion would knock out Dempsey before the end of the fifth round of their scheduled ten-round title bout. Gibson said part of the money was his own, the rest was put up for members of the Westchester-Biltmore club in New York.

Starting Friday the champion will put in three hard days in a row. There will be road work in the mornings and three rounds of bag punching in the afternoons, polished off by six rounds with his sparring partners. Tunney said today that he felt in the pink of condition and only wished the fight with Dempsey was to take place tomorrow.

"My biggest problem from now on," he told newspaper men, "will be to keep myself at the same pitch I am right now."

So that bad weather may not interfere with Tunney's training, emergency measures were taken last night to construct an indoor ring. Billy Gibson, the champion's manager, wants nothing to interfere with Gene's preparation for the fight.

WILL JINX GET GENE TUNNEY?

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—Two successive champions of fistie realms have defended their titles here within a trifle more than a year and both have been dethroned.

Gene Tunney is the third title holder to appear in a Chicago ring.

Will the jinx get him?

Rocky Kansas, possessor of the synthetic lightweight title, came here, mixed it with Sammy Mandell, something of a local pride, lost the decision and the title.

It was here that Tiger Flowers, boss of the middleweights, fought Mickey Walker and lost his crown on a decision, although the bulk of the customers felt he was "jobbed."

Now cometh Tunney and what?

Costly Rookie
Mel Harder, Omaha Western league pitcher, said to be costing the Cleveland Indians $1,000 for every year of his life. Mel is 18 and the Indians are said to have had to fork over $18,000 and a couple of players.

Potters Bunch Blows In Third Frame Rally to Deadlock Game, 2-2

in Safeties Seven for pfor Seven Safeties in City Industrial League Clash at Columbian Park.

With W. O'Brosky turning in a one-hit performance and his mates behind him touching up Lefty Crandall for seven safe drives, the Katies last night tied with the league leading Superior Cords at Columbian park, the count being 2 to 2 when darkness ended hostilities at the end of the fifth.

Victory seemed almost certain for the West Virginians after they had acquired a two-run lead in the first frame, but the Katies came back in the third to bunch three hits and even the tally.

Though a bit wild at first, O'Brosky was parsimonious with his bingles and stole second. Wilde flew to HeShane, Melchori bounded to W. O'Brosky, but Talbott dropped his assist, Evans' scoring. Melchori was caught stealing, Coleman making the put-out. Conners walked, stole second and counted on McConnell's single to left. The latter reached second on A. O'Brosky's throw to the plate. Scullion went out. Coleman to Talbott.

W. O'Brosky singled through third at the outset of the third. McShane flew to McConnell, Hunselman singled to middle. Fisher doubled for the second successive time, scoring both runners. Talbott then fouled to Wilde and C. Coleman flew to McConnell.

The contest was featured by the hitting of Hunselman, Fisher and Melchori. Fisher had two doubles, the last of which scored the tying runs for K. T. K. Merchant had a perfect mark for the day, with a double and a single in two efforts.

Howell, missing a drive of McConnell's in the fourth, came back in the fifth by a great play on Crandall's essay at bunting and a moment later landed Parson's foul behind the visitors' bench. Both plays really kept the contest at a tie as Coleman then threw out Wilde at first. The playing was witnessed by a big throng.

A. O'Brosky contributed a fine running catch off Conners' bat in the third.

J. Evans walked in the first and stole second. Wilde flew to HeShane, Melchori bounded to W. O'Brosky, but Talbott dropped his assist, Evans' scoring. Melchori was caught stealing, Coleman making the put-out. Conners walked, stole second and counted on McConnell's single to left. The latter reached second on A. O'Brosky's throw to the plate. Scullion went out. Coleman to Talbott.

The Application Test: Under an actual brushing test you will find that Mirrolac flows freely, and shows no laps or brush marks.

The Durability Test: Apply varnish stain to a metal panel. Bend it over a straight edge. Then straighten and examine it. An inefficient varnish stain will be badly cracked. The surface of Devoe Mirrolac will remain an unbroken film. This bending test proves the elasticity and durability of the product.

You Betting? Here Are Odds On Big Events

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—Gene Tunney is a 7 to 5 favorite to defeat Jack Dempsey, according to betting odds on Broadway today. The odds that Babe Ruth will not better his record of 59 home runs are 2 to 1.

Against the four contenders in the National league the odds are: Pittsburgh, 9 to 5. New York, 11 to 5. St. Louis, 5 to 2. Chicago, 7 to 2.

Giants, Idle, Trail Bucs By Half-Game In Sizzling Drive

Pair of Timely Doubles by Dressen Puts Skids Under Carmen Hill; Ruth Poles Out Two More Homers.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—As far as the Pittsburgh Pirates are concerned, the sizzling National league race is getting to be too close for comfort. The Pirates were cut down from an unexpected quarter yesterday when they lost to Cincinnati, 6 to 5. The Bucs are now only half a game in front of the Giants, who were idle yesterday.

Charley Dressen, Cincy third baseman, clouted two timely doubles which put the skids under Carmen Hill, Smoketown's crack twirler. The Pirates made three errors which were equally timely—for the Reds.

Meanwhile the Cardinals and the Cubs were getting nowhere with great velocity by splitting a double bill. In the opener, Frankhouse, a rookie pitcher, won a 6 to 2 decision over Hal Carlson of the Cubs with the aid of four hits by Orsatti, another St. Louis rookie.

Two home runs by Hack Wilson gave the Cubs the nightcap by an 8 to 4 score. Wilson now has 25 circuit smacks and is only one behind Cy Williams, the league leader.

Babe Herman of Brooklyn also hit two homers. The Robins beat the Phillies, 9 to 1, after the Phils had won the opener, 3 to 2, by a ninth inning rally.

After having walloped three homers the day before, Babe Ruth broke loose with two more, tying the world's record of five homers in two successive days. He now has 49 for the season and is four ahead of Buster Gehrig. With the aid of these hits and wallops by other inmates of murderers' row, the Yankees took a 12 to 10 slugfest from the Red Sox after having staked the beanbaggers to a seven run lead.

Other teams were idle. The western clubs of the American league began their final invasion of the east today and the Yanks probably will clinch the pennant in short order at the expense of the St. Louis Browns, who have not beaten New York all season.

AT UTICA, N. Y.—Red Herring, Utica welterweight, scored technical knockout over Cowboy Johnny Willets in sixth round.

Adelgaldo, New York, won decision over Steve Wolanin, Utica, 10 rounds.

AT OAKLAND, CALIF.—Pedro Torres, of Panama, was awarded the decision over Eddie Haddock, of Oakland, 6 rounds.

Waker Peterson outpointed Johnny Raymos, 6 rounds.

Gets Last Laugh

The lowly Boston Braves thought Leslie Mann wasn't good enough for them and let him go. The Giants snapped him up and he repaid McGraw by hitting a homer which helped New York whale the high and mighty Cuba.

champion, has been taken up by Chicago's exclusive north shore society colony, it was learned today.

Last Sunday evening, the belated news reveals Tunney was a dinner guest at the Lake Forest home of Mr. and Mrs. William V. Kelley, leader in Gold Coast society.

The blond, tousle-headed Gene, whose brief sojourn in these parts is said to have set many debutante hearts a-flutter, played golf Sunday afternoon with Gordon Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William V. Kelley. This was at the fashionable Onwentsia Country club.

At the conclusion of the match, young Kelley prevailed upon the champion to take dinner with him at the lake shore home of his parents. Other guests at the "little family dinner" included Mr. and Mrs. John T. Pirie and John T. Pirie, Jr., Mrs. Philip Hoyt and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kelley. Mrs. Russell Kelley was the former daphne field.

Gene was right at home and appeared to enjoy himself immensely. He left early, however, pleading that the rigors of training for his September 22 battle with Jack Dempsey demanded that he be in camp by 9 o'clock.

Tunney is said to have received other invitations to home of wealthy Lake Forest residents, but declined them on the advice of counsel—in this case Billy Gibson, his manager. The champion's pleasant, easy manner is said to have made him a distinct favorite among his millionaire "neighbors" in the vicinity of his Lake Villa camp.

Following the dinner party Sunday, Mrs. Kelley, the hostess, is said to have remarked:

"As the mother of four sons, I've met all kinds of boys. But I never met a nicer, more manly young fellow than Gene Tunney."

Mrs. Kelley said she had never attended a prize fight, but that she expected to be at the ringside at Soldier's Field to cheer for Tunney.

Defer Kent Normal School Case Verdict

Trustees Will Announce Decision Next Week on Complaints Against Dr. David Anderson.

KENT, O., Sept. 8.—After closing their fourth meeting for the hearing of complaints against Dr. David Anderson, president of Kent State Normal college, last night, trustees of the school said today that they would probably announce their decision next week.

More than 100 charges have been brought against the president of the school by faculty and alumni, who say he is too dictatorial and ask that he be dismissed. Dr. Anderson has thus far refused to comment on the situation, though intimating that he will make a statement after the trustees have given out their decision.

Many witnesses were questioned yesterday and John Clifton, state director of education, was present for part of the hearing. Considerable criticism has been directed against the trustees because of their refusal to make investigation public.

"Firemen, Save My Child" Heads Bill at Ceramic.

They've gone and done it again, those two unbeatable laugh-provoking—Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton.

In fact, they've stepped out and surpassed their two previous efforts by a wide margin.

"Firemen, Save My Child," the third of the Beery-Hatton pictures, looks as though it were destined to go down in film history as one of the greatest comedies of 1927. It will surely rank among the foremost farces of all time.

What they did in the uniforms of the army in "Behind the Front" and the navy in "We're in the Navy Now," was but a forerunner of the riot they cause in the blue of the fire fighters. It's doubtful if anyone emerged from the Ceramic theatre where the new Beery-Hatton vehicle is the attraction without aching sides.

Beery and Hatton again appear in misfit uniforms, without which it would be difficult to picture them, and the uproar they cause in a perfectly nice young fire department, as they "do their stuff" on fire trucks, with hoses, desperately fighting flames, or just as desperately wallowing in mud to rescue the chief's daughter is one long laugh to the final fadeout.

The picture is not merely a string of "gags," it has a well-defined plot with exasperating comedy situations that build and keep on building, with each moment provoking new shouts of laughter.

EAST END CHURCH RALLY DAY SEPT. 25

Presbyterians Plan
Special Services
Here.

Arrangements have been made by officials and members of the congregation of the Second Presbyterian church for rally day services which will be held on Sunday, September 25, in the church.

Special services will be held in the morning and in the evening. Committees in charge of plans for the event held meetings last night and Tuesday night.

Services of the Sunday school and the church will be merged into one union meeting in the morning.

In the evening the Christian Endeavor of the church will conduct the services.

Special music and programs will be given both morning and evening.

Plans are also under way for a roast beef supper to be given on Tuesday evening, September 20, in the church basement.

ANOTHER LEAGUE GAME ON FRIDAY

WASHINGTON STEWART'S LETTER

STEWART SEES BLOCS GETTING MILLIONS ON FLOOD PROJECTS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8. — Major General Edgar Jadwin, chief of army engineers, has until December to decide how to prevent any more Mississippi river floods, which, of course, means controlling not only the Father of Waters, but all the Old Man's tributaries, too.

If there's an extra session of congress, mainly to hurry him up, Jadwin will have to have his plans ready sooner, but December is his maximum limit.

To frame up a program that can be half-way depended on, river experts agree he ought to have at least 10 years.

THAT a program will be adopted next winter is a foregone conclusion. The country obviously won't wait. Whatever it may be, this is a cinch: Nobody on earth will have the slightest idea, when it's started on, whether or not it will work.

The fact is, the engineers won't really have any plan. They'll have a mountain of tracings and blueprints, maps and diagrams, estimates and calculations, recommendations and reports—no definite scheme.

CONGRESS will adopt this hodgepodge, which will sound like something but actually will be nothing at all, and then the engineers will start working and feel their way, as they go along.

That's what they've done before and they haven't prevented floods. Probably they won't now.

But what it will cost!—oh, boy!

"Well," demanded the flood preventionists, indignantly, "Isn't it worth it?—to prevent floods?"

Sure—if it prevents floods.

CONGRESS wouldn't wait a deand Wellsville go through with their game, billed for Thursday, and the Newell outfit should lose, it is not likely the Friday contest will be played as it would be unnecessary in this case for the Superior Cords to perform again.

Salvation Army Corps Services. Services next Sunday night in the Second Presbyterian church here will be entirely in the charge of the local Salvation Army corps, according to announcement today by Rev. Frederic Dean, pastor.

Rev. Dean will speak at the army citadel while services are under way in the church.

Pastors Attend Conference. Rev. J. Lloyd McQueen, pastor of the Boyce Methodist Episcopal church and Rev. George C. Westlake, pastor of the Pennsylvania Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, are attending the North-East conference convention under way this week in Delaware. Sessions will continue daily until next Monday or Tuesday.

cade, if the country would, for Major General Jadwin et al to cipher out a possibility genuinely workable flood prevention scheme.

Congress is simply wild to get at the billions that are bound to be shoveled into this thing.

Oh, no—no congressman's going to steal anything outright.

History's grandest congressional pork bar'l of the past was a mere, measly, fractional keg compared with this magnificent hoghead that looms before us.

CONGRESSIONAL blocs are being fixed up already to jam through sectional projects in connection with the main Mississippi flood control project.

"You vote for mine and I'll vote for yours." See.

In fact, everybody vote for everybody's.

Away, 'way off, whole nights' rides away from the Mississippi valley, blocs are being organized to get action on local projects that haven't a blame thing to do with flood control.

In return for those blocs' support of whatever Mississippi program congress may happen to decide on.

HOW long will the program take, once it's started on?

Ah, that's one of the beauties of it. Most big public improvements are started, put through and finished, and that ends 'em.

Flood prevention can be strung out forever.

Letters to Editor

N. P. Kerr's Explanation.
Editor of Review-Tribune.

City:

In your issue of Sept. 1, I was written up in a big headline, the blame of the one mill tax levy being put on my shoulders, which was correct. But you did not go far enough in explaining to the people why I cast the deciding vote. If you will grant me a little space in your paper I will explain my stand.

In the first place I do not favor a bond issue for running expenses of the city. The safety fund if given its just dues will produce enough money to run that department in a satisfactory manner. Under the present system of fines and costs from our court we do not get enough and far less than we got under the old system of the mayor's court. If you will look over the city auditor's books you will readily see one big reason why we do not get as much money.

I was opposed to asking the people to vote for a bond issue because of working conditions. I believe you will agree with me that property values have been reduced much more from the general condition of our manufacturers than from any great change that has been made in our fire department.

This administration has bought practically a new piece of fire apparatus, and repaired the others; bought a new fire chief's car and placed two more men on the department than has been on in the past four years, so I think it is surely some better than it was four years ago. Also about five or six miles of new water mains were acquired.

The insurance companies carried the same risks for the past four years, and then after the department was put in a better condition raised rates about 10 per cent. They now ask the people to place a one-mill levy on the tax duplicate to be used for the running expenses of this department. I may be wrong but I cannot see where we are going if we start placing a mill or two on the duplicate every year or so for purposes of this kind. Where is the money coming from in the future to pay these men?

I will believe in a bigger and a better fire department, but let's get together on this subject and not keep adding more tax all the time. Try raising the rent on your properties with the old town in the condition it is in, and see if you do not hear an awful howl. Yet how is the owner going to get the same percent on his investment after all these things go into effect unless he does raise his rentals?

All I want is a square deal on this issue. I have been told that I committed an awful mistake but I have got to be shown. Give the people the true facts as they are. I am for anything that is for the good of the town, but let's be fair in this matter.

I hope I have made myself clear on this issue and if I am wrong, and can be shown where I am wrong I surely favor anything that will be for the betterment of the town, but you will have to show me where it is coming from in the future, and not just for the present.

Thanking you for your space and hoping that I have not committed such an awful blunder as some of the folks have told me, I remain,
Very truly yours,
N. P. KERR.
